1992 Murmurmontis West Virginia Wesleyan Buckhannon, West Virginia

Deciding what to bring to college isn't always easy, but sometimes family members are there to help. ABOVE, Shannon Stout's sister, Buffy, helps to make Shannon's room more like home by making sure Shannon has her stuffed teddy bear.

West Virginia Wesleyan College is probably one of the friendliest colleges in the United States. Most would agree that everyone here at "Wesley World" has at least a nodding acquaintance with everyone else, and all are usually friendly. Throughout the campus, students can often be found mingling with members of the administration, faculty, and staff. And, after they graduate, hundreds of students return to Wesleyan just to talk again with a favorite professor or with their underclass friends. So, it's no secret that Wesleyan is a close-knit college - and, most people like it that way.

Walking through any dorm, one can see students like Robert Packer, Mike Shelley, Ethan Eldridge, and Drew Ward, TOP, having a good time in their rooms. Brenda Kayler and Martha Maury, ABOVE, know that talking with friends is a good way to spend spare time. Most people. like Michael O'Sullivan, LEFT, welcome it when people come to visit.

Eric Meadows, LEFT, passes the time by playing baseball with friends in his hall in McCuskey. $\Theta \Xi$ brothers Enver Kaba, Phil Swan, and Dave Wright, along with Jen Cunningham. TOP, helped make a float for the Homecoming parade. Leland Vincent, MIDDLE, takes time between classles to visit Blackwater Falls State Park. Several students, ABOVE, earn academic credit for participating in the band.

Wesleyan is full of opportunities. From acting to working on a yearbook. there's a little something for everyone. For the physically active students. basketball. football. soccer. volleyball and a complete Nautilus Center provide ways to stay fit. Students looking for mental challenges outside of the classroom can join a variety of organizations, including the forensics team. the Pharos (the student newspaper). and Community Council. And, with a variety of possible majors, students have no problem choosing a field of study that is of interest to them.

Weekends and weeknights alike. there's always something going on at Wesleyan. Several nights a week, the Campus Activities Board arranges for comedians and singers to entertain and sponsors dances and movies in Hyma Auditorium. And, of course, there are parties - both at the fraternities and in the dorms. At other times, friends get together for a game of football or just to talk.

Unquestionably, it's no secret that for anyone interested in knowing friendly people and having many opportunities for an interesting social life. West Virginia Wesleyan College is just the place.

IN MEMORIUM

Abstract

Over the past four years, the Wesleyan community witnessed the loss of five students and one faculty member: Matthew H. Thompson, 1988; Hillary Rodgers, 1989; Chang Won Chung, 1991; Professor Joseph F. Glencoe, 1991; Marie Gaston and Allison Linkinoggor, 1992. The campus family, stunned with its grief, held memorial services to pay tribute and to celebrate the lives of its loved ones. Each of these individuals have left their special mark in Wesleyan's history and in their memory, the following pages are dedicated.

Joseph F. Glencoe, 54, fand been the Director of the George B. Rossfack Herfarium and a Wesleyan professor since 1966 when he died in 1991. He was esteemed for his commitment to teacfing and to botanical research.

A graduate of West Virginia University with a bachelor's degree in biology and a master's degree in botary, Glencoe fod taught at Moris Harvey Colfege in Charfeston, W'V, and at Potomac State Colfege in Keyser, wV, prior to joining the Wesleyan faculty.

A memonal service for Glencoe was freld in Wesley Chapel on Aprif 16, 1991. He fad died suddenfy of an apparent heart attack at his fome March 17. Glencoe is survived by fis mother, Dessie, ard Grother, David, both of Buckhannon, and fis daugfter, Katherine L. Glencoe of Charteston.

In Dean of the Chapel Jerry Wood's words from Glencoe's memorial service: "Joe Glencoe was a kind and gentle man, concemed witf the needs of others more than humself, dedicated to fis discipline, and a lover of nature. He has been a quiet, ever voure un the life of the Wesleyan community and fus presence will be sorely missed."

Matthew Thompson entered West Virginia Wesleyan College in the fafl of 1988 as a freshmar. Matthew fiad recently graduated from Soutfiuick High School in Soutfiwick, MA and was planning a Physical Education major with aspirations of teacfiing physical education or athiftic trairing. Matthew's figh school experience included a number of extracuricular involvements, including lettering in soccet and golf and participation in Corcent Band as a section leader. In addition, Mattinew was broadly involved in a number of community recreation sports including baskethafl, Gasefaff and soccer, and voluntecerd as a soccer referee. Matthew was a member of the Southwick Congregational Church's Youth Fellowship and Young Life Chub.

Matthew's parents, Jane, a 6th grade teacher and Peter, a systems analyst for the State of Connecticut, are both graduates of Dickinson College in Carlisle, PA. A sister, Melanie, graduated from the University of New Hampsfure.

Matthew died on December 14, 1988, at the end of fiis first semester at Wesleyar, int an accidertal fafl from a stairwell window at the rear of Jenkins Hafl.

Wonds from Matthew's memorial service perfiaps best describe the impact he had on fis friends at Wesleyar: "We remember firm kicking the fhacky-sack. . . tossing a frisbee... lifting weigfus. . playing soccer and basketball. . . shooting pook, as if aff the world depended on the next shot. We think of his friendstip as a door that was always open. . and a smife that was always ready. . . for caring and giving and accepting. . . for wanting to be witf us. . . for aff the furny lines and aff the laughter, that never sought a victim."

Hifary Anne Rodgers graduated in June 1988, from North Allegheny High School, Wexfond, Pennsytvania, where she was active, among other things, in Field Hockey, Student Govenment, Concent Chorale, Yearbook, and Jurior Acfievement. She was also a member of Ingomar United Methodist Church She enrolfed at West Virginia Wesleyan College in the Fafl of 1988 and declared intermational studies as her major in the Spring semester. Alffough Hilary's time at Wesleyan was but one year, her involvement in campus activities, as well as het warm and inviting personality, enteared her to students and faculty alike. She was a fright and disciplined student, a fresfiman representative, a member of the Afpha Xi Defta 1989 Spring pledge class, and active with Intemational Students concems on campus.

Hilary was the daughter of Wiffiatr D. Rodgers and the late Marilyn C. Rodgers, and sister to Jeffery C. Rodgers, Courtney R. Larkin, and the late Gerald S. Rodgers.

Hilary died on July 12, 1989, due to accidental cartion monoxide poisoning. She was at twome for the summer after her freshman year at $W^{\prime} V W^{\prime} C$.

Words spoken at Hiary's memorial service on campus seem to typify the response her friends and teachers had to her presence at Weskeyan: "We remember het as a spectal person whose presence was a joy to those around her. Our hearts are warmed when we recall her sensituvity to feelings, and wiflingness to do anything for a freend or acquantance."

AGlison Linkinoggor was an elementary education major and a 1990 graduate of Spencer High School. A dean's list stadent, she was also in Wesleyan's Honors Program. She was a Mason Cnckard Scholar and a recipient of a Westeyan Academic Scholarship ard an Underwood-Smith Teacher Scholarship. She was a member of the W'esteyan Concent Chorale ard Chapel Choir and was elected to the 1990 Homecoming Court. She also won the Wesleyan Frestiman Spuit Award. She was a member of the Wesleyan forensics team arul a cast member of an upcoming play, "Hooters." She was president-elect of the Residence Haff Council. She was a resident assistant in Holloway Hall, an admissions campus tour guide, and a member of InterVarsity Chistian Fellowship.

Adfison w'as the daughter of Jerry and Susan Linkinoggor of Spencer, wl. She, along with Marie Gaston, died on Jantuary 10, 1992, in a car accident.
"It is difficult to describe the impact on this colfege community of such a tragic accident," said President Thomas Courtice. "Both Affison and Marie were significant contributors to the life of this college, Goth were field in the fightest regard by their faculty and felfow students. We wiff grieve as a famify as we try to comprehend what has happened."

Marie Gaston was an English and speech-communications major and a 1990 graduate of Lircoln High School in Shinuston. She was a Mason Crickard Scholar, dear's list student and a member of the Westeyan Honors Program. She was elected last falf as secretary of Community Council. She was a member of Wesleyan's forensics team, and she was an admissions campus tour guide. She was a reporter for the Pharos, Wesleyan's student newspaper. Marie was especially proud to be a member of the A fifha Gamma Delta sorority.

Marie, who died on January 10, 1992, in a car accident with Alfison Lukkinoggor, was the daughter of Stanley Gaston of Mannirgton and the late Hester Gaston.

Just as everyone else does, the sisters of Alpha Gamma Delta greatly miss Marie. "We fondly remember our dear sister and friend, Marie Dawn Gaston, witf enduring fove. Her spirit wiff continue to lift our fiearts and make us smile. God Bless You, Marie.'

CGhang Won Chung entered West Virginia Wesleyan College in the fall of 1989. Chang Won transfered in two years of course work from Sangji University in Korea. Chang completed his studies at Wesleyan ir July of 1991. Prior to leaving Korea for fis studies in the United States, Chang Won was actively involved in musical performances and in ceramics ard artwork. He continued with those interests while enrolled at Wesleyar.

Chang Won's parents, Joo-Il and Hwaja, reside in Seoul, Korea. His father is an entertainer/comedian with Dong Won Production Compary ard was recently elected to the Korear National Assembly. His sisters, Mi-Sook ard Hyur-Sook, are curently enrolfed int colleqe. Mi-Sook is attending Wasfington and Lee Colfege in Pennsylvania ard Hyun-Sook wilf complete her education at Scoul Women's University this year.

Chang Wor was kilfed in a tragic automobile accident in Seoul, Kotea, in November 1991.

Charg Wor was very active in Wesleyan's Intemational Student Organization and was always willing to assist in any way. He represented the ISO in many presentations in the local community, including the Hi- $\gamma$ Leadersfiup Program, the Spring 1991 Intemational Day at the Acafemy Primary School, the American Association of University Women and others.

All of Wesleyan continues to grieve over Chang Won's tragic and untimely death. As a faculty who taught him, as a student body who enjoyed his sociafility, ard as a group of friends who had deep affection for Chang Won, we continue to share a sense of coss.

"Take My Life, and Let it Be"

Take my life, and let it be consecrated, Lord, to thee.
Take my moments and my days; let them flow in ceaseless praise.
Take my hands and let them move at the impulse of thy love.
Take my feet, and let them be swift and beautiful for thee.
Take my voice, and let me sing always, only, for my King. Take my lips, and let thiem be filled with messages from thee. Take my sifver and my gold; not a mite would I withfiold. Take my intellect, and use every power as thou shalt choose.

Take my wifl, and make it tfine; it shall be no longer mine. Take my heart, it is thine own; it shall be thy royal throne. Take my love, my lord, I pour at thy feet its treasure store. Take myself, and I will be ever, only, all for thee.

United Metfodist Hymmal

Without people, Wesleyan would not be what it is today. Of course, people attended school here and helped to run the school, and for that reason, Wesleyan was in existence. But Wesleyan was more than just a college. People were here for more than just an education: they came because they wanted to be a part of the open and friendly atmosphere of Wesleyan. People came from all over the United States as well as from foreign countries. This variety of people helped to make Wesleyan a unique place to be, and that's no secret.

L
Leaving familiar, comfortable places is never easy, but seniors learned to deal with the idea. The time came for them to abandon the relative security of college life and to enter the "real world." And, although it's no secret that seniors' lives were filled with the anxiety of finding jobs and beginning careers, senior life was also fun at times. There were parties, banquets, and activities that helped relieve senior stress. Goodbyes were difficult, but the seniors knew that they could come back and visit good old "Wesley World" anytime.

The Building Blocks Of. . . WESLEYAN

One of the things Wesleyan prided itself on most was the beauty of its campus. There were eight dormitories on campus - Camden Apartments, Holloway, Benedum, Jenkins, Agnes Howard, Fleming, McCuskey, and Doney - which gave the students a variety of choices as to where to live.

The Martin Religious Center, Christopher Hall of Science, Haymond, Administration Building, Rockefeller Center, Loar Hall, and Middleton Hall were buildings in which students had classes.
"I live in Aggie, so the Martin Religious Center is my favorite place to have class. It's close to my dorm so I can just roll out of bed and go - plus it's airconditioned, which is a big plus in the spring," said Rachel Abbandandolo.

The Annie Merner Pfeiffer Library and the Benedum Campus Center were two buildings that were never void of students. The library was the most popular place on campus to study, and the Campus Center held several offices, along with the post office, the bookstore, the game room, and the SCOW.

All the buildings on campus contributed to the beauty of West Virginia Wesleyan College.

Life In The. . . FRAT LANE

"I like living at the house. Sometimes it gets noisy and hard to study, but I can always go to the library," replied Jon Langsam when asked how he liked living at the $\Theta \mathrm{X}$ house.
Frat houses were a big part of Wesleyan. They not only provided weekend entertainment for a lot of students, but they also provided a place to live for several fraternity brothers.
Jason Ackerman, $\mathrm{X} \Phi$ brother, liked living at the house because "at the house you get to live with your friends, and on campus you're forced to live and share the bathroom with people you don't know."
"It's more comfortable living at the house because there aren't as many rules like quiet hours and stuff like that. The atmosphere here is more comfortable and it feels more like home," said $\Theta \Xi$ brother Jim Hoffman.
Most people thought of the fraternity houses as places to go to party, but for the brothers it was home.

Faced With. . .

NEW PRESSURES

Even though some people may think so, going away to college didn't always give students freedom. Students may have been free from the restrictions of living at home, but they couldn't escape the new pressures and stresses of college life.
Being away from home and parents, students at Wesleyan were faced with new responsibilities; there wasn't anyone to remind them to go to class, to do homework, or even to get something for dinner.
"It was kind of difficult to adjust at first, and even now I still get really stressed sometimes, but I'm learning to be responsible for myself," said Mary Davis.

Learning to deal with different situations was part of what college life was all about; out in the "real world" there wouldn't always be people there to help solve problems.
' I'm from Belize, and coming to West Virginia to live and go to school was a big step for me, but in the long run I think it was a good decision because it has helped me to become selfsufficient," said Javier Brown.

Students Want To Be. . . IN THE MONEY

Food, clothing, and shelter - these three basic necessities shouldn't have added up to much cash coming out of the students' pockets. After all, students could get their meals at Aladdin; they could bring clothes from home; and they could live in the dorms. So why did students need cash?
"I need cash because sometimes Domino's just sounds better than Aladdin," said Carolee Bennett, "and sometimes you just need to buy that extra piece of clothing to make yourself feel better."

Students also spent money on entertainment and materials for classes.
"I need money for gas for my car and also to rent movies," said Steve Belson.
"I use my cash mainly for entertainment, like video games and videos, books, and projects for my classes," said Allison Hill.

Even though there was a variety of items students needed to spend money on, cash wasn't always easy to come by. Some had workstudy jobs, but that didn't always provide cash for the students.
"I don't have any cash because all my cash goes to pay my tuition," said Jim Abraham.

Students weren't always "rolling in the dough," but somehow they almost always managed to make ends meet.

Housing Staff. . . ENFORCES RULES

Forty-seven people were responsible for dealing with the actions of students in the dorms.
There were four to six Resident Assistants (R.A.) in each dorm. They had to get to know the people on their floors and explain the rules to them.

To supervise the R.A.'s, there was an R.L.C. (Resident Life Coordinator), an A.C. (Assistant Coordinator), or a G.A. (Graduate Assistant) for each dorm. These were David Donald, McCuskey R.L.C.; Melissa Sieber, Camden R.L.C.; Jeff Ransom, Jenkins R.L.C. ; Lisa Linger, Fleming G.A.; Jill Schuster, Holloway A.C.; and Sharon Banks, Benedum A.C.. The Director of Housing and Resident Life, Rick Dillon, supervised in Agnes Howard.

"It's been a new challenge for me to work as a G.A. because I'm still close to the students since I graduated from Wesleyan last year," said Linger. "But, I agree with the school's policies and the professional staff gives us the support necessary to enforce those regulations."

Weekends Mean. . .

IT'S PARTY TIME

The whole campus breathed a sigh of relief on Fridays. The students put all of their worries and stresses aside for the weekend and concentrated on having fun.

The typical weekend scene, for a lot of students, consisted of going out to parties. Parties were held at both the frat houses and in dorm rooms.
"I throw parties in my room so my friends and I can release tension from the everyday monotony of school," said James "Smitty" Smith. "I feel that we need an equal balance between education and fun; without that, we're going to get stressed out and tired of school."
"The bar scene and frat houses get old after a while. My friends and I just need a change of pace, so we'll all get together and chill out in someone's room,' said Monique Jenkins-Glover. "We'll watch movies or play Nintendo or something like that.'

Students used parties. whether they were watching movies or just hanging out with friends, to forget about the stress and strain of college life

Adjusting to college life is less than easy, but members of Wesleyan's underclass quickly learned to cope. It was a little easier for sophomores and juniors - they at least had friends to return to. But, for freshmen and transfer students, being away from home and moving in with total strangers could be somewhat bewildering. However, making new friends and experiencing new things is what college is all about, and the underclass soon learned to enjoy it.

FROM HERE TO THERE

It is 6:00 p.m., the bookstore is closed, and in the middle of typing your term paper that is due first thing in the morning, your typewriter ribbon runs out. Also, it's raining, so walking to the store is out of the question. What does a student in this situation do?

If Buckhannon were a big city, public transportation would be the obvious answer for the distraught student whose final grade is going to be their half-typed term paper. But, unfortunately, this luxury is not typical of this small West Virginia town.

With public transportation out of the question, some students resorted to bumming rides from friends. Even those who were fortunate enough to have a vehicle sometimes found themselves confined to campus for one reason or another.

Kelly Criste said, "The car is always at my disposal, but it's the money for gasoline that's the problem."
Suzanne Bryant was often confined to campus for another reason: "I hate to move my car after I find a parking spot because the spot is never there when I come back and I end up getting a parking ticket.'

HOME AMONG THE HILLS

Some said that it rained seven out of ten days in Buckhannon, but the residents of Buckhannon never felt down knowing that each year Wesleyan students would return to Buckhannon for another productive year.

Whether students were looking for some of the comforts of home or for a place to socialize, Buckhannon provided them with a number of little shops, bars, and restaurants along Main Street.
"We've got Ames, Pizza Hut, Domino's, and Rite Aid's comic section. What more could you ask for?'' said Marty Rinard about Buckhannon.

The small-town atmosphere of Buckhannon gave students a sense of security and community.
"Within the boundaries of Buckhannon, there is a special kind of nostalgic feeling that can only be found in a close community," said Liz Sechler.

FOR A BUCK

In order for a lot of students to make ends meet while here at school they had to take on work-study jobs. Nearly every department and office had work-study students.
"I was assigned my job in the Admissions Office at the beginning of second semester. I decided I needed to work because I was pledging a sorority, and I definitely needed the extra cash," said Jeana Dumire. "Working helps fill my spare time, which I had too much of before my job."

Many students had jobs working in the departments of their majors. Other students worked in such places as the Campus Center, the bookstore, and the library. This year two new work-study jobs were added: desk-sitters in the girls' dorms, and student security positions.
"Being a desk-sitter is a pretty easy job because I can get my homework done, and I also get to meet a lot of interesting people while sitting in the office in Fleming," said Chris Yohe. "Basically, all I have to do is make sure that deliverymen don't go upstairs. I call the rooms to let people know that their order is in the lobby.'
No matter what jobs they were, students' work-studies were big helps for meeting college costs.

Dorms Can Be. . .

JUST LIKE HOME

"I like living in McCuskey because, even though it's far from all my classes, it's close to the dorms where my friends live," said Anthony 'Nino' Picciolo.

There were many different reasons why students liked living in each of the dorms.
Kelly Clendaniel said she liked living in Benedum because "there's a lot of storage here. It's carpeted, and a lot of the people who were freshmen the same time I was live here."
"I think that Fleming is one of the quieter dorms on campus, and it's one of the cleaner ones too. The bathrooms are reasonably clean." said Steve Belson.

Aside from the dormitories, there were also apartments available in Camden.
Paulette Siegel lives in a four-person apartment. Siegel said, "I like it better over here because, for one thing. I don't have to worry about going to the cafeteria because we have our own kitchen. Also, we have three rooms, so we're not confined to one small space. There aren't any R.A.'s on our hall either, so we have a lot more freedom."
Everyone had a reason for liking a particular dorm, whether it be the quiet, cleanliness, closeness to friends, or the comforts of home.

Always Looking For A Piece Of. . .

MAIL IN THEIR BOXES

Going to the post office was a part of Wesleyan students' everyday routine. It was always a thrill for students to see more than campus mail or empty space in their boxes.
"I really get tired of getting "airmail", all the time. By "airmail," I mean going to my box to find it filled with nothing but air," said Jan Smiley.

Some students subscribed to magazines and newspapers just to ensure that they got mail.
Molly McClennan said, "I subscribe to newspapers to keep up with the news back home, and it also helps to know that l'll at least have something in my box."
Students could almost count on there being some type of campus mail in their boxes every day. The post office workers were continually stuffing boxes with Calendars of Events, flyers, and notices.
"I like to get campus mail because at least I know that I'm going to get something in, my box. I also live off campus, so it helps me to know what's happening on campus," Jon Langsam.

Although students were often disappointed by the absence of mail, they still made those frequent trips to the post office.

Ray Miller, ABOVE, strikes it lucky with a box full of mail. Post office workers, such as Dana Bonjorno. RIGHT, are constantly busy handing out packages to Wesleyan students

It's All Up To. . .

THE INDIVIDUAL

"When I came to Wesleyan as a freshman, I dressed in a hip-hop style like people in Philly dress," said Monique Jenkins-Glover. "Now, since I've been here for three years, I find myself dressing more conservatively."

Many different fashions were seen here on campus; what one wore depended totally on the individual. A lot of students dressed in what would be considered "preppy" clothes: oxfords, casual dress pants, and loafers without socks. Other students wore clothes that were more relaxed, such as sweats, bluejeans, and $t$-shirts.
"I like to dress sloppily sometimes so I'll be comfortable; but some days I just get in the mood to dress up, so I'll put on a skirt and a nice sweater or blouse," said Tammy Clowdus.

Allison Hill said, "At home you dress with the latest trend, but when I came to Wesleyan I noticed that people went to class in sweatpants, tennis shoes, and sometimes even pajamas - no one really cares. It's more relaxed here because there isn't really just one trend.'

Dressing in styles that were popular didn't seem to matter too much; Wesleyan students dressed as individuals.

The move from home to college can be stressful enough itself, but having to come to college and meet the person you will be living with for the whole year can sometimes be nerve-racking, especially for freshmen.
"My roommate and l met when we visited the school for the weakend. We talked to each other on the phone all summer, so when we met it was like we had known each other forever," said Kim Drew. "We have the same personalities and interests, and we're best friends and pretty much inseparable. She's in a sorority now and I'm not, so l give her space, but we always find time for each other."

Some roommates hit it off right from the beginning, but others did have their problems. The Housing Department held four room lotteries during the year so roommates who were having problems could move somewhere else.
"l eliminated the problem of having to worry about a roommate by getting a single. I have to pay extra for it, but I think it's worth it," said Carole Meyers.
If roommates were a problem, there was always a solution, whether it was moving in with someone new or deciding to move in by yourself.

Brenda Kayler and Erin Elliott, TOP, have shared a lot of good times together as roommates.

Not only roommates but good friends, Charity Metz and Jill Strahin, ABOVE, are bappy with their roommate situation

There was always someone to go to for help at Wesleyan. Faculty members were almost always available to assist students with everything from studying for a test to understanding a financial aid form. And, this help was not just available during office hours - nearly all members of the faculty encouraged students to contact them at home when they needed to. Obviously, it's no secret that faculty members were dedicated to the cause of helping students.

Dr. Thomas B. Courtice served his sixth year as president of Wesleyan in 1992. Courtice's main duty as president was to report directly to the Board of Trustees to carry on administrative business.
Courtice said, "A large part of my satisfaction at Wesleyan comes in supporting the people of the college in their growth and development and in experiencing their impact on the campus community. To each of you who has grown during your Wesleyan years, know the pride I hold in your accomplishments. You provide the best of reasons for enjoying West Virginia Wesleyan College.'

rina A. Dobberstein took a new title in 1992 - she ecame the Dean of Student Development and Enrollment lanagement. Dobberstein began working at Wesleyan in 985 and had held several positions including Director of tudent Aid and Dean of Students. Dobberstein, in her new osition, was responsible for overseeing many campus prorams and offices, such as the Counseling and Wellness enter, the Campus Center, and the Financial Aid office. "I enjoy WVWC because, as an educator, I believe in the ualitative difference that a small, church-related, liberal rts college can offer in terms of the total development of udents - intellectual, personal, social, and spiritual," aid Dobberstein. "There's an atmosphere of familiarity, mmitment, and caring that is energizing."

Dr. G. Thomas Mann came to Wesleyan in June of 1992 to accept the responsibilities of Dean of the College. Mann's official duties as dean included coordinating curriculum, faculty, library, and outreach programs, and ensuring that faculty, library, and outreach programs, and ensuring that there was administrative cooperation for the entire formal instructional programs and support structures. Mann eninstructional programs and support siructures. Mann enjoyed his duties at Wesleyan and was happy with his choice to work at this college.

Mann said, "Intellectual and personal growth go hand-inhand at Wesleyan. That is what makes this such a great place to study, teach, and work."

Dave Thomas has been Treasurer of the College since August of 1984. As Treasurer, his responsibilities included the business and financial operations of the college. Dave Thomas said he chose Wesleyan "because of the challenges and opportunities that it offered and my commitment in believing that a four-year private, liberal arts, churchrelated college provides outstanding opportunities for young men and women to receive educational experiences that are not offered by public institutions. Further, it is my belief that Wesleyan has the potential to be one of the very finest institutions in this region of the country, and I would like to be a part of the faculty and staff in realizing that potential."

It's No Secret That. . .

"Even though I don't have too much of it, I like to spend my spare time listening to music and just trippin' out with my friends," said Amy Hutchison.

Students and faculty both enjoyed spending their spare time, what they had of it, doing things that had nothing to do with studying and homework. Spare time was hard to come by, and it often consisted of merely an hour between classes.

Hours off in the afternoon left students with time to do many different things. Students went to the arcade, went to the SCOW, worked out, or just chilled out in their dorm rooms.

Shane Carter, for instance, spent his spare time during the day either lounging around his room or getting a game of Nintendo going with some of his friends.

Being in college did not give students, or faculty, the opportunity to complain about too much spare time on their hands; in fact, it made them appreciate what spare time they did have all the more.

"Hats off to the dedicated staff of the Annie Merner Pfieffer Library, especially the hard-working cataloguing office," said Wendy Braswell, a sophomore.

Student life was quite active on the Wesleyan campus. Outside of the classroom, students helped to organize and participated in many different activities throughout the school year. Orientation. Homecoming, and theatre were only a few examples of these activities. And, although these activities served to teach the students more about life and responsibility, it's no secret that most students thought that they were also a lot of fun. Learning while having fun was what student life at "Wesley World" was all about.

ORIENTATION '91

A class of 450 freshmen was welcomed into the Wesleyan community during Freshmen Orientation. On August 31, orientation began with the help of fifty student leaders and thirtyone faculty advisors.
Divided into CORE groups, each person, together with fourteen or fifteen others, learned their way about campus and became familiar with Wesleyan. After a series of meetings, the groups participated in the CORE Olympics, with events such as the neckorange relay, the egg toss and the baby bottle relay.

For many freshmen, coming to Wesleyan meant leaving home for the first time. Students came from twentytwo different states and eight foreign countries. The distance between many students and their parents made it hard for families to visit often, but in September Wesleyan held its Parents' Day.
The day was filled with events to help the parents become familiar with the faculty and the campus, and to spend time with their son or daughter.

Freshman Dana Cain said. "It was really nice showing my parents how well I have adjusted to college life.'

ALL ENJOY HOMECOMING

It happens every October - hundreds of members of the alumni return to Wesleyan on the same weekend. Is it just some kind of strange coincidence? Not hardly, October 12-13 was Homecoming weekend.
Past graduates of Wesleyan enjoyed returning on Homecoming weekend for several reasons. Most had fun reliving their years here by attending the football game, watching the parade, and seeing old friends.
"It was great to be able to

At Wesleyan, the arts enjoyed support and enthusiasm from the students, faculty, and community, especially in the area of drama. The theatre department offered dramatic plays and musicals to all those lucky enough to hold tickets to the shows.

Dr. John Urquhart, in his third production since he joined the faculty in 1990, directed a version of William Shakespeare's The Comedy of Errors. This comical farce of mistaken identities involved 26 students and community residents. Actors, acrobats, and jugglers shared the stage. Larry Reed was the technical director and set designer and Sandra Presar designed the costumes. Starring in this production were Bil Lepp and Suzanne Fehl.

Cole Porter's Kiss Me Kate dazzled audiences during four performances under the direction of Charles Presar. The music director was Larry Parsons, the vocal and dialect coach was Caroline Dees, and the costume designer was Sandra Presar.

The show's storyline was the backstage and on-stage happenings of a production of Taming of the Shrew. This J-term project boasted a cast of 43 students and a technical crew of 20. ## DECK THE HALLS

The Hanging of the Greens took place on December 5, 1992 and was sponsored by Wesley Chapel. Most of the greens that were hung in the chapel were donated by Mrs. Brenda Casto, and the rest were donated by the Physital Plant at Wesleyan.

With the help of many volunteers, it only took a couple of hours to decorate the chapel. Students from several campus and Greek organizations participated in the event.

The greens were first pu together with chicken wi in Kresge Hall and then the were taken to the chapel be hung.

Some of these activities included running relay races, watching videos, making Christmas ornaments, and facepainting.

This was the eighth year that Wesleyan hosted "The purpose of Christmas on Campus was to share the Christmas spirit with the Upshur County schools," explained Diana Cummings.

In order for the children to go through each station, every group was assigned two tour guides. Wesleyan students could sign up to be guides or they were recruited by Azim Khan.
"I actually went door to door at one point to sign people up for tour guides,"stated Khan. Christmas on Campus.

Wesleyan Leaders Receive Honors

he Awards Ceremony was held in April in Wesley Chapel. Students from every class were chosen as recipients for awards and scholarships. The awards were presented by members of the campus community.

The presentation of some awards has become tradition. For example, every year the position of the pres ident of Community Council is handed down from the past president to the newlyelected one. Following this tradition, Novella Woodrum past her position down to Azim Khan.

Throughout the ceremony, awards and scholarships were given by different departments. Although the awards differed greatly, the recipients had worked very hard in order to have earned them.

ENTERTAINMENT SPECIALTIES

The Campus Activities Board, or C.A.B, planned several activities for students to enjoy. Nearly every weekend there was something to do or to watch on campus.
C.A.B. arranged for popular movies like Robin Hood and Silence of the Lambs to be shown in Hyma Auditorium. Comedians and singing groups also performed for the students.
"I liked watching the movies in Hyma because it was almost like an actual theater," said Molly McClennan. "It was great to be able to see relatively new movies for free."
C.A.B. also held activities that directly involved the students. Many enjoyed the chance to get on stage and sing a song or perform a comedy routine at "Open Microphone." Others took advantage of the lip-synch competition at "Air Band.
"Air Band is my favorite C.A.B. event because it's fun to watch people perform,'" said Michelle Harbaugh. "Also, the groups can win prizes, so it is a good competition."

Alpha Gamma Delta was founded on May 30, 1904 at Syracuse University to be a national women's fraternity. The Wesleyan chapter was Alpha Omicron. The International Headquarters was located in Indianapolis, Indiana. The mascot was the squirrel, the sorority's flower was the red and buff rose, and the national magazine was The Quarterly.

Alpha Delta Pi was the first founded secret society for college women, dating back to May 15, 1851, at Wesleyan Women's College in Macon, Georgia. Their colors were azure blue and white; the sorority's flower was the Woodland Violet and their mascot was the lion, "Alphie." This spring semester they made quota with their 18 new Alpha pledges, and the sorority members looked foward to a sisterhood with them. Alpha Delta Pi sisters could have been quoted as saying "we live for each other," and "first and finest" when asked about their sorority.

FUN IN THE SUN

Spring Sing, one of Wesleyan's traditional events, was held on April 25, 1992, in the chapel. With the theme of "Fun 'N Sun Wesleyan Style," each fraternity, sorority, and independent group that entered had prepared three songs to perform for the crowd. The songs each group chose had to go along with the theme of Spring Sing 1992.
The groups did not only have to sing but the members had to perform some synchronized dance moves while they sang. And, each group had to choose one person to be the director.
Sharon Banks of Kappa Phi won the Director Award for the independents. For the sororities, Julie Birt of Alpha Gamma Delta received the First Place Director's Award, Carrie Thachuk of Alpha Xi Delta came in second, and Tricia Allen of Zeta Tau Alpha received third place. For the fraternities, Dwight Brown of Phi Sigma Phi received the First Place Director's Award, Jason Ackerman of Chi Phi came in second, and Ron Boyd of Kappa Alpha received third place.

The Sing Awards for overall performance were Kappa Phi for the Independents; Alpha Gamma Delta (first), Zeta Tau Alpha (second), and Alpha Xi Delta (third) for the sororities: and Phi Sigma Phi (first), Chi Phi (second), and Theta Chi (third) for the fraternities.
No matter who won, a good time was had by all who participated in or just came to watch the competition.

GREEK GAMES

Greek Week took place during the week of April 20-25. Each fraternity and sorority participated in all of the events.

The activities of the week were quite varied. They included such events as water polo, boat races, donkey basketball, badminton, Go Fish, horseshoes, wrestling, bed race competitions, volleyball, and water relays.

The winners of each of these events were awarded points, and the fraternity and sorority who had amassed the most points were declared the winners of Greek Week.

For the sororities, Alpha Xi Delta won Greek Week with a total of 66 points. Alpha Delta Pi came in second with 54 points; Alpha Gamma Delta was third with 48 points; and Zeta Tau Alpha was fourth with 24 points.

For the fraternities, Kappa Alpha won Greek Week with a total of 177 points. Chi Phi came in second with 160.5 points, and Theta Xi was third with 89 points.

No matter who won the overall competition, it was a fun time for all of the students who participated.

Many students went to the house on Fridays and Saturdays to have fun with the brothers. At Theta Xi, one could always find plenty to do and plenty of people to do it with Theta Chi Fraternity was founded in 1856 and was established locally in 1959. Since this time over 830 brothers have passed through their house as active members. On warm days their music was heard on all parts of the campus while the brothers enjoyed a game of golf or football. Their brotherhood was recognized as being one of the strongest because of how they held up their traditions and ideals. Theta Chi's interaction with the Buckhannon community was in the forms of Adopting a Highway and donating blood. They have also enjoyed winning the best float category in the Homecoming parade for three years in a row.

Cر oncert Chorale was one of the hardest-working groups at Wesleyan. Their purpose was to create music and share that creation with audiences. They met four days a week for rehearsal and performed several concerts during the year. Members were chosen from students who auditioned. They came from diverse backgrounds and majors to give the time and discipline to sing great choral literature.
Another group existed within the Concert Chorale - Concentus Vocum. Concentus was a small group whose members were selected from the Chorale. This group performed its own repertoire at spring and fall concerts, as well as the President's breakfast during Homecoming weekend.
Each Christmas season, the campus and community looked forward to The Festival of Lessons and Carols performed by the Concert

Chorale. This festival celebrated Christmas music and Scripture readings. The Chorale took a one-week tour to different part of the United States. Concerts were given in churches, many of which were the home churches of Chorale members or Wesleyan alumni.
The Concert Chorale was a group whose purpose was not only to entertain, but to provide a learning experience for its members, to educate its audiences, and to act as ambassadors from Wesleyan to other parts of the country.

As Chorale President Eric Waggoner states: "Our members represent varied walks of life who come together because of a love for music which transcends our differences to make us, to a large extent, a family".

THEY'VE GOT THE BEAT

Dr. David Milburn described the West Virginia Wesleyan Concert Band as being an "outstanding group of volunteers who come together to play concert music, and do it well, just for the enjoyment of it."
The Concert Band's purpose was to play concert literature at different activities on campus. The band was found to be in the stands at every home football game playing music. The band also held two concerts annually, their Christmas concert and their Spring concert. At the end of the year, the band played a pre-commencement concert for the parents and friends who were awaiting the graduation activities to begin, and they also played ceremonial music during the graduation ceremony.

To prepare for their performances, the band rehearsed twice weekly, but they were under a different director during the second semester while Dr. Milburn was on sabatical. Dr. Don Hamilton conducted the concert band during Dr. Milburn's absence.

rian Smith. ABOVE, is a member of both the concert and jazz band.

The Wesleyan Jazz Ensemble was very busy this year. Under the direction of Randy Brown, a 1980 alumni, the Jazz Band performed a variety of music for events on and off campus.
The Jazz Band held three concerts throughout the year. Not being limited to only performing at concerts, the band toured during the break between J-Term and Spring semester. The band's 1992 tour consisted of concerts in West Virginia, Pennsylvania, New York, and Canada. It was during this tour that the band played in Ontario, Canada, for the first time.

Touring was not anything new for the ensemble. On May 19 the band set off on a tour of Ukraine, Romania, and Russia, in what Dr. David Milburn referred to as a "good will exchange for young people."

The band toured Europe for three weeks. Jeremy James said that the trip to Europe was a "wonderful and challenging experience." Scott Travis said, "Going to Europe was an eyeopener for the band as far as seeing the different cultures and the new unified Russia." The Volunteer Services, directed by Jeannie O'Halloran, was a group of individuals who donated their time and efforts to help other members of the local community.
The French Creek Mentoring Project, led by student coordinator Trish Allen, required a one year commitment to spend at least three hours a week helping their "mentees" with homework, taking them on field trips, and talking about their problems.

Sixty Wesleyan students in the Read Aloud Program went to Central or East Main Street Schools each week to read to elementary school students. Each volunteer spent at least one half-hour a week with their lucky boy or girl.

The Wesleyan 4-H Club joined with other volunteers to assist children in the community with schoolwork. Five volunteers gave two hours a week in open sessions with kids who needed help.

The goal of the Student Literacy Corp was to improve literacy skills in the community. Norma Chinique, student leader, and the other volunteers spent 60 hours a semester in a program of their choice like Adult Basic Education or Head Start.

A brand new program at Wesleyan was Big Brothers/Big Sisters. The North Central WV chapter oversaw the volunteers as they read, did homework, and socialized together with their Littles.

Academic credit could be earned in the Mentoring Project or the Student Literacy Corp, but the most important rewards came in the form of smiles and hugs from their special friends.

WRITE ON TIME

The Murmurmontis staff, under the direction of editor Michelle Harbaugh and advisor Mrs. Nancy Porter, was responsible for the production of Wesleyan's yearbook. Many challenges faced a newly organized staff whose primary goal was to get a yearbook produced on time for a normal fall delivery. The 1992 staff distributed both the 1990 and 1991 yearbooks which had been delayed in production for a number of reasons. Increased participation was seen in the number of faculty/staff and student portraits taken for the 1992 yearbook. Staff members learned "it's no secret" that team effort was essential to staying on schedule and meeting production deadlines.

ON THE PRODUCTION LINE

The value of the practical experience earned by producing a weekly newspaper transcended the many hours of hard work. Each week Pharos staffers wrote and typed story assignments. Co-editors Theresa Gradishar and Carolee Bennett edited the stories, then Liz Sechler, design editor, transferred the typed stories to the layout program which set copy and headlines on an actual page. Leland Vincent was the Pharos photography editor, and he contributed to every issue. When the process of producing a newspaper did not run smoothly. Craig Forbes, the technical editor, or Dr. Mark Defoe, the advisor, was called to help fix the problems. Everyone involved thought that the experience of working for Wesleyan's campus newspaper was both educational and enjoyable.

IN THE CHAIR AND ON THE AIR

Wesleyan's college radio station, C92-FM, was managed by students and served the campus and general Buckhannon area. The station's music reflected a wide range of tastes from classic rock to New Age and from Reggae to Jazz, depending on the interests of the station's student DJs. Radio Club, under the direction of General Manager Ann Caroll and advisor Richard Allen, was open to any Wesleyan student interested in having "hands-on" experience with an actual radio station.

Some students involved with the radio station ran their own radio shows. DJs were responsible for choosing music and for playing that music over the airwaves. Most DJs had weekly shows that lasted for a few hours each.

Other students involved helped to manage the station. This included recording the public relations announcements, choosing DJs, and deciding when to air certain shows.

It's a Small World

I
In 1992, Wesleyan had the largest enrollment of international students it had ever had - 64 students representing 23 countries. And, nearly all of these students were active in the International Students Organization.
ISO's biggest project this year was their partnership program with Academy Primary School. ISO had received a grant from the National Association of Foreign Student Advisors with additional funding from Olive and Ross Culpepper to form this program. International students representing 13 countries visited the 16 classrooms at the Academy for a 20 -week period. The students provided information about their native countries, including geography, history, language, education, holidays, social life, current and popular events.

In 1992, ISO also continued their exchange programs with Sakae Institute (Japan), and three universities in Korea: Yonsei University, Ewha University, and Duksong Women's University. There were also new exchange programs with Norway and Bulgaria.
The 15th annual International Student Banquet was held on April 11, 1992, at which cultural foods, fashions, and entertainment were provided for the soldout crowd.

 the thrill of victory were big parts of all of the sports at Wesleyan. Each member of the teams enjoyed some success for the season. Whether the team only won a few games or the team went on to play in the district tournaments, it's no secret that Wesleyan sports were important to campus life.

RECORD-BREAKING SEASON

In the program's third year, the 1992 West Virginia Wesleyan College women's soccer team roared to a national top 10 ranking and the Great Lakes Regional Championship game, posting a 15-5-0 mark.

Numerous school records were set by the team and individuals. Senior goalkeeper Sue Kelly tallied 13 shutouts and freshman midfielder Linda Bauer erased all previous scoring records with 18 goals and four assists for 40 total points. Junior midfielder Jackie Knicely broke her assist mark with nine. The team scored a school-record 52 goals while allowing only 11 opponent scores. They also broke the records for the most shutouts with 13 , consecutive wins with 6 , and most goals in a game with 13.
Four members of the team received special recognition for their accomplishments. Linda Bauer was NAIA AllAmerican Honorable Mention and Second Team AllRegion; Sue Kelly was NAIA Academic All-American, NAIA All-American Honorable Mention, First Team All-Region, and One Valley Bank Senior Scholar Athlete: Lisa Savori was NAIA All-American Honorable Mention and First Team All-Region; and Charlene Ward was Second Team AllRegion.

"We had another excellent season, and both teams took another major step toward national caliber," said Coach Mike Snyder, who was named WVIAC District 28 Coach of the Year for the third consecutive year.

The women's team was undefeated in WVIAC competition, winning the District 28 championship for the third straight year, and they also qualified for the nationals in Kenosha, Wisconsin. At the conference meet, the women took 3 of the top 4 positions and 7 of the top 15. Jennifer Jones was the WVIAC Champ and Runner of the Year. Lisa Calef was named Academic All-American.

"Although illness and injury kept the men's team down early, they almost pulled a major upset at the conference meet, losing to Wheeling Jesuit by one point," said Coach Mike Snyder. Pat Sharpe and Kent Steiner qualified individually for the nationals.

Awards given within the team included most valuable, received by Skip Bell, Tod Herchenroether, Al St. Jean and Jennifer Jones; and most improved, received by Chris Cowan and Jennifer Wagner.

1991-A LEARNING EXPERIENCE

"This season was a learning experience for both the team and the coaching staff," said Coach Cindy Cavanaugh. "We expected a better record; however, we did not anticipate the injury problems."

The Lady Bobcats ended their season with a $5-20$ overall record and a 4-14 conference record. The highlights of the season were home wins over Glenville State and West Virginia State College. The Bobcats lost in the first round of the WVIAC tournament against West Virginia Tech 62-74.

Senior guard, Kelly Hyre, received Honorable Mention All-WVIAC with an average 17.04 points per game and making 64 of 80 freethrows. Freshman center, Shannon Mallory, received Special Honorable Mention with an average 12.55 points per game and 9.68 rebounds.
"Next year should prove to be exciting for Women's Basketball at WVWC," said Coach Cavanaugh.

Baseball

Wesleyan's baseball team had an excellent season, ending their regular season with a $23-7$ record. Not only did the members of the team have a good season, but Coach Randy Tenney was named the WVIAC Coach of The Year.

Three members of the team were named to the AllWVIAC Conference Team. These members were: Juniors Troy Roberts, Todd Ringhiser, and Senior Mickey McCoy. Receiving Special Honorable Mention for the All-WVIAC Conference Team was Jeff Martin.
Troy Roberts and Todd Ringhiser were also named to the Area 7 NAIA Team.
The 'Cats regular season ended with a 23-7 record, and post-season play saw even more victories. The team traveled to Princeton, West Virginia to play in the conference championship, and they left the championship with a 17-1 record plus the conference tournament championship, which made their season record total 26 7.

The 'Cats were given a bid in the Area 7 NAIA tournament. They walked away with a $1-2$ record, leaving themselves with a final season record of 30-8.

WINNER TAKES ALL

Coach Mike Hinkle's Lady Bobcats ended their season with a $32-3$ record, being ranked 19th in the country. The ladies gained the West Virginia Intercollegiate Athletic Conference title during regular season, and they were the winners of the District 28 tournament. This year's team had the best record in Wesleyan history, and they also set the record for most wins in a season.
Four members of the team were named to the first team All-Conference: Paulette Siegel, Suzane Bryant, Lyn Chadwick and Lisa Thompson.
Rachel Kosky, Paulette Siegel and Lisa Thompson were named to the AllTournament Team.

The majors of Sports Medicine and Athletic Training (within the Teacher Education Program) provided approximately 35 students with classroom and practical experiences designed to prepare them to enter graduate school and the numerous professions related to athletic health care. Twen-ty-four of these students were pursuing national certification in athletic training through the N.A.T.A.approved 1500 hour internship route, and they were actively working as student trainers, assisting with the care of over 400 intercollegiate athletes here at Wesleyan.

All students enrolled in these majors were exposed to opportunities that were often not available at a small college, including observation of general and orthopedic surgery, the emergency room, and the physical therapy department of local hospitals. Upperclass students had the chance to work with physical therapists and athletic trainers through a cooperative exchange with a local sports medicine clinic. Most students graduated with over 1000 hours of "hands-on" experience in athletic injury prevention, care, and management.

West Virginia Wesleyan College was not an easy place to leave. But, at the end of the year, everyone had to pack and move out of the dorms. For some, the end of the year meant going home for the summer. These people were sad to leave their friends, but they knew that they would return in the fall. However, for those graduating, the end of the year meant the end of their college days at Wesleyan. For the graduates, May was more difficult because they would have to say goodbye to friends they might not see again for a long while. Although Wesleyan students were sad at leaving, they tried to relax and have fun during their last weeks on campus.

SOPHOMORE CAPS

Wesley Chapel was the setting for the 1991 Sophomore Nursing Convocation. This convocation recognized the students who met the requirements for entrance into the Nursing Program at West Virginia Wesleyan College.

Sixteen sophomore nursing students and two junior students were honored on the evening of October 26, 1991. The presentation of the nursing cap traditionally symbolized acceptance into the profession and identified the individual with a particular nursing school. The Wesleyan cap design represented the characteristics of faith, hope, and charity.

BEGINNING OF THE END

Wesleyan's one hundred second Baccalaureate was held on May 15, two days before graduation. For many seniors it was the reality that they needed to make them realize that it was truly time to gradute; it was the beginning of the end of their college careers. The program was a religious ceremony for graduates and their families. During the ceremony, seniors Sue Kelly, (Co-President of the International Student Organization), Novella Woodrum, (former Community Council President), and Robyn Frierson, (former Black Student Union President) spoke to the congregation.
The Concert Chorale, directed by Dr. Larry Parsons, and the Chapel Choir, Ied by senior Valerie Wilson, sang different selections throughout the program.

Reverend Gerald E. Wood, Dean of the Chapel, introduced the speaker, Dr. Edward A. Trimmer. Dr. Trimmer was a 1974 Wesleyan graduate and an active member of the Wesleyan Alumni Council. He delivered a sermon in which he told the graduating seniors that the church is a community in life. They were told that no matter where they go they will never be alone because there will always be a church.

Baccalaureate ended with the benediction, given by Dr. Ernest Capstack, and the recessional for the senior class.

Commenting on the service, graduating senior Ken Whitlock said, "I felt the speaker Dr. Trimmer was very good. It helped knowing he was an alumni, a member of the Wesleyan community. He had special insight as to how we feel as we are making the transition from Wesley World to the real world."

ENDING WITH A BEGINNING

Graduation. The word dangled in front of seniors like candy in front of a child, and with it came frazzled nerves and mixed emotions. Graduation signified the beginning of a new stage of the seniors' lives; they were finally ready to enter the reality of the "real world." It was also the end of a stage of their lives filled with memories of times had with the friends they had made while here and friends which they were soon going to have to part from.

The ceremony began with the parade of students and faculty. West Virginia State Senator Robert Byrd, George H. Dixon, and Chi Kił Kim were given honorary degrees, and the guest speaker was CNN News Anchor Catherine Crier. Crier spoke to the graduates about the power of the individual. She told the graduating class that they as individuals could make a difference in the world.

Finally the moment came when the seniors walked across the stage and were given that long-anticipated diploma which they had worked so hard for. With the diploma and handshake from President Courtice came responsibility and pride, not only felt by the graduates themselves, hut from the audience too

When the ceremony was over, the graduates filed out of the gym to find their family and friends, and take their first steps out into the "real world." They had done it; they had survived and were ready to face the challenges of beginning a new stage in their lives

A rhododendron garden was also added in honor of students and faculty members who had passed away. There were also several new events on campus such as Earth Day. sponsored by the Environmental Club, and the visit of presidential candidate Jerry Brown. So. it’s no secret that a lot was new at W'esleyan in 1992.

Some things stayed the same at Wesleyan. Students took classes and studied, but they still had time to have fun. For fun they partied with friends, played sports. or went to the gameroom. just like students had done in years past. But, even though some things stayed the same, it did not get boring - in fact. many students took comfort in the sameness at Wesleyan. It's no secret that West Virginia Wesleyan College was a great place to be.

Rod Gunther. TOP. decorated his room to fit his personal style, which is what students at Wesleyan have always done Relaxing out in the sun is what students, like Phil Swan, LEFT, like to do during their spare time. Students also like to play sports in the oval; Brian Hill and Bill Lepp. MIDDLE, play frisbee. It is also common to find students, such as Dave Fell, ABOVE. studying on the Chapel steps

Thanks go to:

- Trina Dobberstein, Beth Lampinen, and Alice Leigh in Student Affairs, for helping with everything and anything we needed help with.
- Jim Warner, the Sports Editor of the Record Delta , for providing sports pictures.
- The Sports Information office, for helping with copy and photographs.
- The College Relations office, for providing photographs.
- Janet Crites in the Athletic office, for helping us get information and picture identifications from the coaches.
- The Alumni office, for helping with the distribution of the 1991 yearbook.
- Charlotte 'Butch' Rainey and Betty Jean Burke at the Switchboard, for helping identify photographs.
- J.R. Cornell and the Physical Plant, for transporting the yearbooks.
- The Housing Office, for letting us stay on campus to finish the yearbook.
- The Post Office, for shipping the yearbooks and for getting our proofs to us on time.
- Members of the Pharos staff, for letting us use their information and for helping us cope at those long work sessions.
- Yearbook Associates, for taking all of the mug shots.
- Doug and Ron Richardson at Taylor Publishing, for answering all of our questions.
- Members of the Wesleyan community, for helping to identify pictures and helping us get the book out on time.
